The products are stain, scratch and slip resistant, offering a seamless indoor and outdoor solution to make the most of new extensions, open out kitchen builds and bifold door improvements.

Seize the moment with PrimaPorcelain.

Why porcelain is better than natural stone

No-one can deny the beauty of natural stone paving, but we genuinely believe that porcelain is an even more appealing option whilst being suitable for any project whether its indoors or out. It is every bit as attractive as real stone and porcelain's performance is significantly better in several areas:

Low porosity
More moisture resistant

Scratch resistant
Scratchproof, frostproof and fireproof

No sealing required
Maintenance free

Easy to clean
Looks great all of the time

Stays clean
Less dirt and staining

Porcelain versus natural stone

The key benefit of choosing porcelain over natural stone paving is porcelain's very low porosity (less than 0.05%). Stone paving slabs vary greatly in porosity, meaning that it is very difficult to choose a natural paving stone that is especially non-porous. Higher porosity leads to dirt and staining, which will ruin your paving slabs for good!

As natural stone is porous it needs sealing to keep moisture and dirt from getting into the stone and staining it. Many types of stone – sandstone, for example – require a regular sealing regime as the sealant weathers and wears away over time. If natural stone paving goes unprotected, and dirt penetrates the stone, it becomes costly and almost impossible to clean.

Moisture-resistant porcelain does not stain because it does not allow water into the material; the only cleaning required is warm, soapy water once a year to remove any debris and organic matter (grass, soil, leaves, etc.). Pressure washing is also suitable for PrimaPorcelain and won't damage/wear the surface like it can with natural stone.

Eco friendly flooring

Concerned that natural stone paving slabs would be better for the environment? Don't worry – our products are extremely eco-friendly too. Made from natural raw materials with minimal waste, which is recycled back into the manufacturing process, porcelain contains no waterproofing agents, varnishes or resins. Unlike natural stone paving, it is not polished using lead and does not give off any gasses when exposed to flame. During the manufacturing process, every possible measure is taken to recycle water and save energy.

Why choose PrimaPorcelain?

PrimaPorcelain is the elegant, easy clean, no maintenance alternative to traditional indoor tiles and outdoor natural paving. Our porcelain is manufactured in Italy from extremely pure clays and minerals, shaped by dry pressing and fired at an extremely high temperature. This makes porcelain a far better flooring material than ceramic tiles, which only offers a limited protective glaze. Porcelain is durable, requires no maintenance and looks fantastic in any space.

Rectified tiles and paving

What is rectified tiling and paving?

PrimaPorcelain tiling and paving is rectified. This means each one has been precisely machined to give near-perfect straight edges and exacting dimensions. This provides a very clean, symmetrical look and enables high design content, allowing for a “seamless”, stylised contemporary appearance.

Colours and shades

PrimaPorcelain offers the largest stocked range of porcelain paving in the UK and available in a wide range of colours and shades to suit your home.

Great for indoors and outdoors

PrimaPorcelain tiles and paving are available for any floor project, whether indoors or outdoors. All of our stylish indoor tiles are complemented by equally good looking, hard-working, textured outdoor paving, where added grip factor helps prevent slipping and promotes use whatever the weather.

In Britain, the outdoor is moving inside as room design throws off its ties and unbuttons its collars to create a seamless transition between your indoor and outdoor spaces. PrimaPorcelain flooring sits at the heart of this radical readjustment to home living. As bifold doors replace brickwork and interior innovations lead to outdoor expansion, PrimaPorcelain takes style to the four seasons, with sophisticated, sumptuous shades; clean, crisp colours and tactile textures seamlessly highlighting elegance and innovation inside and outside the home.

Our 1cm indoor tiles and 2cm exterior ranges in smooth, fine textured, and textured (grip) finishes combine to set a stunning stage for your exciting new living space.

Contour, texture and grip

Our hand crafted designs for tiles and paving offer a variety of surfaces to match the looks, presentation and applications that many of our customers seek. Smooth tiles are available for indoor use and PrimaPorcelain’s 1cm tiling range offers a variety of styles to meet these interior requirements.

For areas, inside or outside, where you wish to replicate the contours and textures of natural stone, you will find examples of our 2cm paving that incorporates a textured grip, matching the tactile comforts of natural stone material and helping to ensure sound footing, even when used outdoors and where exposed landscaping is highly vulnerable to the elements.

To help you match the right texture and grip to your application, we have allocated each product with a grip factor from 1 to 5. Our smooth range of interior tiles have a grip factor of between 1 and 2 and are unsuitable for use outdoors; our external paving, with the most evident structured surface, is grip factor 5. Surfaces with a grip factor from 3 and above are suitable for outdoors. Whatever contouring, texturing or grip you favour, don’t forget that all PrimaPorcelain tiling and paving provides a super low-maintenance option that natural stone simply cannot match.

To understand more about our grip factor rating, visit our website – www.primaporcelain.co.uk – and discover where and how a textured surface tile or paving should be used to perfectly match your application. Commercial customers will also find full technical details on the commercial section of the website.

2cm Italian Limestone Vintage

2cm thick outdoor porcelain paving slabs

Until very recently, porcelain was only produced in relatively thin profile - around 9-12mm thick. This meant the product had to be installed onto an adhesive or mortar/cement base, depending on application type.

Our manufacturers have almost 50 years of experience with this material and have harnessed all this knowledge and experience to develop a thicker profile. 2cm thick porcelain can now be used as a structural paving slab. For the first time porcelain can be dry installed onto support pedestals as it is load bearing and does not require a mortar base to support the whole surface area. This has revolutionised the use of porcelain for outdoor flooring – from residential outdoor living areas to large, commercial areas that are subjected to very heavy pedestrian foot traffic.

Using our pedestal supports allows you to achieve a level surface very easily whilst also increasing both thermal and acoustic insulation. This is the quick and easy solution for installation as no paving skills are necessary – ideal for DIY enthusiasts! No mortar, adhesive or grout is required for installation meaning the 2cm paving range is clean to install and that the surface can be used immediately.

Should dry installation not be feasible, these 2cm slabs can also be laid in the traditional manner on a mortar/cement base or adhesive base. You must use an SBR bonding agent if installing onto a mortar base.

Texture and grip

For outside areas you will require paving that incorporates a textured profile grip, which more than matches the tactile comforts of natural stone materials and, most importantly, helps to ensure sound footing. For easy definition, we have awarded each PrimaPorcelain product a grip factor. PrimaPorcelain paving for outdoor use has a grip factor ranging from 3 to 5, according to the amount of relief present on each paving. The photographs alongside illustrate the grip of two examples of paving products – compare this to the grip of their 1cm counterparts on page 15.

As you will see from the pictures alongside, our 2cm Sandstone White slab has a textured finish and grip factor of 5 – whereas the 1cm equivalent on page 15 is smooth and has and a grip factor of 2.

You can find out more about grip factor on the PrimaPorcelain website.

Seamless transition from indoors to outdoors

Combine the 2cm thick paving with tiles from our 1cm thick range to create a seamless transition from your inside to outdoor living space.

1cm thick indoor porcelain floor tiles

PrimaPorcelain's 1cm porcelain floor tiles are the perfect flooring solution for practically any space. They're available in a fantastic range of colours and textures, and since they can be used both internally and externally*, they allow you to create a seamless transition between your indoor and outdoor spaces. The 1cm thick tiles are designed for traditional installation onto a suitable adhesive.

Our porcelain floor tiles are exceptionally sturdy and extremely versatile; with a range of different finishes available, you can install them in almost any environment, indoors or out (minimum grip factor 3). Some thinner-profile porcelain floor tiles can be cheaper but when compared with our Italian products you will quickly realise why: the surface design, texture and aesthetic cannot be compared.

Whether you want a cool, modern effect, or you are looking for a warmer colour palette, you will not be disappointed – our porcelain floor tiles will provide you with a sturdy, stylish, and low-maintenance surface, with equal parts luxury and convenience.

Texture and grip

Smooth and fine textured surfaces are available for indoor use and PrimaPorcelain's 1cm tiling range offers a variety of styles to meet all your requirements.

To help you match the right texture and grip to your application, we have allocated each product with a grip factor from 1 to 5. Our smooth interior tiles have a grip factor of 1 or 2; our external paving, which has the most evident relief, is factored between 3 and 5.

For areas, inside or outside, you will find examples of our 1cm tiling that incorporates a raised profile grip, helping to ensure sound footing for all uses (a minimum grip factor of 3 is required for exterior installations).

As you will see from the pictures alongside, our 1cm Tirolo Grey tile has a smoother finish and grip factor of 2 – whereas the 2cm equivalent (on page 13) is textured and has a grip factor of 5

Full details can be found on the PrimaPorcelain website.

Indoors and out

Consider linking your new interior flooring with a fresh look for your patio, garden or balcony. Some PrimaPorcelain products are available in 1cm as well as 2cm and in similar shades and styles for a consistent, elegant appearance that also makes the most of extensions, conservatories, bifold door improvements or a SunSpaces garden building.

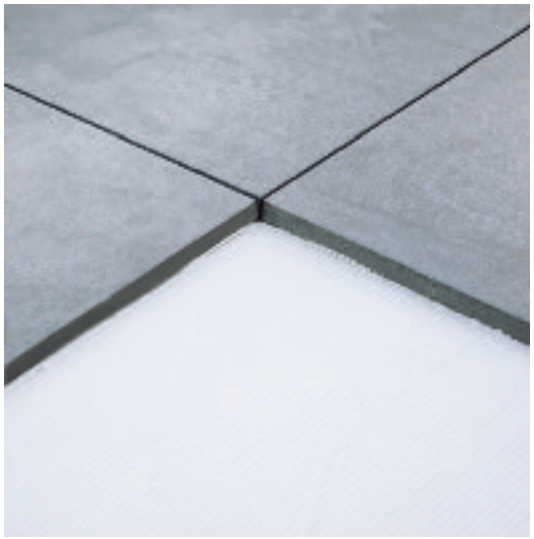
Installation options

At PrimaPorcelain, we're proud to sell the very best quality porcelain tiles and paving that are available on the international market.

We are confident that once you have received your order you will be delighted with our products. That's why it is important that they are then installed impeccably to show them to full advantage to your friends and family.

Installing 1cm tiles

Indoors, traditional adhesive techniques can be used to position the tiles to meet your design requirement.



Right and below: Laying 1cm tiles with tile adhesive onto an existing concrete substrate (will require grouting).

Installing 2cm paving - dry installation using pedestal supports

Our easy-to-use, pedestal support system does not require mortar, adhesive or grouting. The pedestals provide a level surface quickly and easily, and allow cabling and piping to be concealed.

Should dry installation not be suitable, you can use a traditional mortar cement combined with SBR bonding agent to lay your porcelain tiles or paving.
